County Candidates Speaking in Hope This Friday Night

Welcomed at Saratoga Thursday—Week Winds Up Blevins Saturday

CLOSE NEXT WEEK

Final Week of Tour Opens Monday at Ozan, Tuesday at Bingen

By J. T. BOWDEN, Jr.

Thursday morning the voters of Saline township welcomed the county and district candidates to Saratoga for the fifth meeting in the four days of the 1938 stump tour. W. M. Dillard and J. L. Hughes served as chairmen during the all-day session.

Wednesday night the office-seekers spoke before a large gathering at Fulton.

Having other rallies to attend Thursday afternoon and night the two candidates for senator from the Ninth Arkansas district, James Pilkinton, Hope, and W. F. Reagan, Glenwood, were again granted the privilege of speaking first on the day's program. Thursday afternoon they spoke at Mt. Tabor in Montgomery county and at night in Glenwood, Pike county.

Next to be heard were the candidates for sheriff, Reginald Bearden, present deputy, headed the list. He said in part: "I am a settled young man. Proud of my record as a deputy under my father. My record is on an open book with no sealed pages. I invite your investigation."

"Wednesday afternoon and again Wednesday night one of my opponents, Mr. Baker, made a statement that I did not exactly understand. I would like to ask him to explain if there was any insinuation when he said that he had had 'cases convicted and cases that were turned loose, and never have I given false evidence in any case.'"

Mr. Baker was the next to speak. After reviewing his early life and his record as a police officer said, "No one has ever said that he was not treated right by Clarence Baker. In my talks I have cast no reflections and made no insinuations against anyone but that of anyone else. I am standing on my own record and not that of anyone else. I am not very large but I have the grit it takes to do the job."

In making his announcement for the same office John Griffin said, "I come to you as a neighbor from just across the prairie at Columbus and Cross Roads. I have no record as an officer but the record of my life is over there and I invite you to investigate it thoroughly. The only thing between Mr. Bearden, Mr. Baker and myself is the office. I am qualified to fill that office and I promise that I will be on duty all the time if elected."

Mr. Bearden in his rejoinder thanked Mr. Baker for clarifying the situation as related above.

C. Cook and Dewey Hendrix, candidates for tax assessor, made short announcements regarding their qualifications.

Aspirants to the county clerk's office were next to present their claims. Gifford Byers headed the list being followed by Frank Hull and Andrew Hutson.

Sheriff Jim Bearden made the last speech before the meeting adjourned for the noon hour. "I thank you heartily for the support given me by the residents of Saratoga and Saline township during my two terms as your sheriff. I extend to you my sincere appreciation."

Again W. B. Nelson was absent when the aspirants to the two representative posts were called. The seven speaking in turn were: Royce Weisenberger, C. E. DeLooney, Talbot Field, Jr., H. D. Clark, J. A. Sullivan, John P. Vessey and George D. Brown. All went on record as favoring of the auto testing law and a renovation of the state welfare department.

Joe Booker again spoke in behalf of his brother, Lester, who is running for the office of state land commissioner. Prosecuting attorney entrants, Dick Huie and Lyle Brown, both of Arkadelphia, Clark county, were the next

Mrs. Caraway Says Robinson, Not McClellan, Drew Road Bill

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—Arkansas "roving" federal judgeship, created at the recent session of congress but as yet unfilled, bobbed up Friday night in the middle of the state's heated senatorial campaign.

Congressman John McClellan, opposing Senator Hattie Caraway's bid for renomination at the August 9th primary, charged in a speech at Conway Thursday night that the woman senator was "dangling the bait" of an appointment to the bench before a dozen influential men in order to win their support.

The senator herself, carrying her campaign into south Arkansas repeated to a Conway audience her version of how Arkansas obtained 5 million dollars of federal aid road money from the government.

McClellan insisted that he was the sole author of the amendment to the Cartwright road bill which released the funds to the state. Mrs. Caraway said the amendment was rewritten by the late Senator Joe T. Robinson, in 1937.

Europe's Motto Is, "Let the Government Worry About Doctor and Hospital Bills"

Medical Care by State Started by German Bismarck

Launched in Imperial Germany, Idea Spread All Over Europe

NOW IS UNIVERSAL

Fascist, Bolshevik, Democratic Nations Provide Benefits

LONDON.—Sickness, with its attendant bogies of doctor bills, hospital bills, and loss of wages, has largely ceased to be the terror it once was in Europe.

The reason is the widespread adoption of health insurance plans designed to take care of the working man and his family in their hour of need.

It all began in Germany, where the great Iron Chancellor, Bismarck, killed two birds with one federal law by establishing health insurance. He not only thought it a good thing that the people be provided with adequate medical care, but at the same time made political capital of the measure by stealing one of the main planks of the German Social Democratic party.

Today more than 19,000,000 persons are covered by compulsory health insurance acts in Germany where, under Chancellor Hitler, the government medical program is one of the greatest props of the totalitarian state.

Many other European nations have followed the German lead with some form of health insurance designed to provide medical care during periods of unemployment caused by sickness.

The plans in the various countries differ greatly in method, although not so much in general objective. In Germany, the plan works like this:

Both employers and employees pay into the funds, the rates of contribution varying according to basic wage. In case of sickness, each insured person and his family receives medical attention for a period not exceeding 26 weeks. If the illness is serious, hospital care is supplied, usually by state hospitals at somewhat less than cost of operation.

From the fourth day of illness and through 26 weeks thereafter, the workman gets a cash payment not more than half his basic wage. If treated in a hospital, he gets 25 per cent of his wage, since part of the hospitalization costs are met by the state. If the workman dies, his family receives a funeral benefit equal to 20 times his weekly wage.

Russia Goes All the Way Soviet Russia has the most nearly complete socialized medicine to be found today. The constitution itself provides:

"Citizens of the U. S. S. R. have the right to maintenance in old age and also in case of sickness or loss of capacity to work."

Health insurance (state provision of medical care) costs the Soviet citizen nothing. The state and private employers pay the cost. This requires contribution of from 3.8 to 10.7 per cent of the amount of the wages. Sickness benefits vary from full wages to two-thirds of the wages, according to length of time the worker has been employed.

In Norway, most persons more than 15 years old whose annual income does not exceed 1500 kroner (about $1100) must carry sickness insurance. Contributions are designed to cover all illness expenses. Insured persons pay six-tenths, the employer and the community (provinces) one-tenth each, the state two-tenths. Benefits range from 25 cents to $1 per day.

In most European countries, operating room scenes such as pictured above hold no economic terrors for insured workers. With the notable exception of Great Britain, all European nations which operate sickness insurance systems pay the cost of operations and confinement care in addition to general medical service. Most of the systems also provide general hospitalization, drugs, preventorium and sanatorium service, and cash benefits during time of illness.

Gynasium Being Built at Saratoga

New Auditorium-Gym for School Will Accommodate 700 Persons

The school district at Saratoga is soon to have a new combination auditorium-gymnasium. All of the framework is up and the siding is being put on now. W. J. Falls, Mineral Springs, foreman, said that he hoped to have the building completed not later than January 1. The speed with which the work is done depends upon the number of carpenters supplied by the WPA.

The project is receiving financial assistance from the federal government. It is estimated that the total cost of the building will be $15,000.

Outside dimensions are 60 by 100 feet. The auditorium or gymnasium floor will measure 59 by 80 feet, being plenty large to accommodate a regulation basketball court. In the west end is a stage 20 by 30 feet with dressing rooms on each side. There will also be two balconies, one on each side of the building. The outside is to be drop-sided and painted. The floor will probably be of hardwood.

It is estimated the auditorium will have a seating capacity of 700.

Two More Held in Liquor Raids Here

Irene Webb and Thomas Williams Arrested Thursday Night

Police Chief Claude Stuart announced the arrest of Irene Webb and Thomas Williams, negroes, in separate whisky raids at their homes Thursday night.

At the negro woman's home, South Laurel street, officers seized three gallons of untaxed liquor and destroyed about four gallons of home-brew.

The negro woman later posted bond for possession of untaxed liquor and was released, pending a hearing in municipal court next Monday.

The Williams negro was arrested at his home on Seventh street and was also charged with possession of untaxed liquor. Officers said Williams hurled a pitcher that contained whisky to the ground when they approached.

The two latest raids brought the total to more than a dozen in the past two weeks in which about 15 gallons of untaxed whisky were seized and several persons arrested.

Giant Seaplane Is Unreported on Hop Guam to Manila

Planes, Ships Join Hunt—No Accidents in 2 Years on Pacific

MANILA, P. I.—(P)—A giant Hawaii Clipper with 15 occupants, missing approximately 12 hours on a flight from Guam to Manila, was made the object of an intensive search by air, sea and underwater craft Friday night.

Seven planes, eight Navy ships, six submarines and an Army transport were thrown into the hunt for the $450,000 flying boat over the Pacific ocean.

Fears for the safety of the six passengers and crew of nine increased as the hours dragged by without word since the last message was flashed from the Clipper's radio at 10:09 p. m. Thursday (Hope time).

Largest Flying Boats

The Pacific Clipper, largest planes in the world in commercial air service, ranging from 24 to 28 tons, have been flying the Pacific in regular passenger service without mishap for two years.

A Clipper-type ship was lost by explosion in mid-air some months ago while on a flight from Hawaii to Australia—but it was on an experimental voyage, surveying a projected new route to the southern continent, carried no passengers, and encountered special hazards.

The Clippers have four motors and a hull capable of cruising in heavy seas on the ocean.

Samson: Strength and Weakness
Text: Judges 14:5, 6; 15:11-14; 16:15-21

Every nation or people has its traditional giant or strong man—the man who accomplishes amazing feats far beyond the capacity of ordinary men. The remarkable thing about the story of Israel's strong man, Samson, is that it is so human, so close to fact, and so little affected by a tendency of other mythical and traditional stories to glorify utterly unmoral or evil actions as if they were virtuous.

A remarkable quality of the Old Testament Scriptures is the way in which even national heroes are shown up for what they were, both good and evil, with no purpose to minimize their defects of character and conduct. It is this quality that makes these Old Testament stories—because of their reality—essentially moral tales, very striking in their teaching and in their application to life.

The story of Samson is a great dramatic tragedy. It begins with the strength and opportunity of the man—a giant in physical prowess with a measure of devotion to his people and a willingness to serve them, but with elements of weakness in him, even from the beginning. There is a disposition to take life lightly and to use his strength for other than serious ends. He appears in some respects as a great joker rather than a great hero; although his pranks, such as sending the foxes with their lighted tails into the standing grain of the Philistines, served the cause of his own people.

But the real weakness of Samson appeared in his lack of complete devotion to a high ideal. With all his physical strength, he was lacking in moral discipline and purpose; and in this way, he became an easy victim to dalliance and to the wiles of a designing woman.

Delilah stands in history as the symbol of the temptress, luring strong men into evil and shearing them of their strength. Perhaps history has been a little too hard on her. After all, she was more in the nature of a spy, serving the cause of her own people, and the history of spying is full of the sort of allurement with which Delilah deceived Samson and brought him to destruction.

The real lesson of the story is in the course of Samson himself. He is a pathetic figure, shorn of his strength and blinded. Yet there is a remnant of the old Samson that comes into evidence once more as his strength returns and he feels for the pillars of the House of Dagon and pulls down the great structure, destroying thousands of the Philistines along with himself.

But even at that, what an ending for a man who started out with such strength! It is so much less to give death to one's enemies than to give life and strength and service to one's own people.

The life of Samson was negative and destructive, where it might have been positive and constructive. He stands in the record with elements of greatness, but as a tragic figure rather than of inspiration.

Let the strong man beware of his strength is not in sinew and in muscle—important as that may be—but in the moral firmness of will and vision and character.

Business Outlook Is More Hopeful

Further Decline During July, But Business Tone Improves

ST. LOUIS, (AP)—Business sentiment scored "a very marked improvement" throughout the Eighth Federal Reserve district during the first half of July despite continued downward trends in virtually all industrial groups, the St. Louis Federal Reserve bank reported today.

The rise in security values, the favorable crop outlook, evidences of stability in commodity prices and government spending were cited as chief causes for the hopeful attitude.

The banks' survey disclosed more rapid declines in trade and industry through June and the first part of this month than in May, but these were accounted for "in large part by the usual seasonal influences," it's report states.

Production fell to the lowest levels of the year. Heaviest curtailment in manufacturing was noted in the durable goods industries, particularly iron and steel, quarry products, lumber and building materials.

Stocks of merchandise remained low and merchants continued to supply their needs in a hand-to-mouth manner. This, however, brought further improvement in inventories in all fields.

June department store sales in the principal cities of the district were 6.3 per cent and 12 per cent smaller, respectively, than a month and a year earlier. For the first half of 1938 their cumulative total was 7.7 per cent under those for the comparable period last year.

Combined sales of all wholesale and jobbing firms reporting to the bank were 4.3 per cent under those in May and 2.3 per cent less than in June, 1937.

Construction contracts awarded in the district were 6.6 per cent smaller than May and 11.5 per cent less than in June a year ago, but the dollar value of building permits issued for new construction in the principal cities last month were 28.8 per cent greater than in May. These were 4.8 per cent less than in June, 1937.

Developments during the past 30 days in the steel industry have brought about moderate improvement "particularly from the view of sentiment," the bank said. Reduction of the price of pig iron has resulted in the heaviest buying movement since the spring of 1937.

Distribution of iron and steel from warehouses remained on a parity with May and demand for structural steel was increased largely due to increased public works contracts.

The bank and shoe industry has shown signs of coming off its lethargy and a more rapid pickup in sales since the last week in June has been noted. The important firms have reported "decided improvement" in advance buying.

Railroad transportation, both freight and passenger, continued in the doldrums. Freight traffic for the first six months of the year was the smallest for any like period since 1932. June passenger traffic in the district decreased 6 per cent in revenue compared with the same month last year.

Petroleum products for May were 6.2 per cent less than in April but 79.4 per cent above that of May, 1937.

Dun and Bradstreet reported 42 commercial failures in the district in June, compared with 30 in May and 22 in June, 1937.

Liabilities involved in last month's defaults totaled $402,000. Those of the preceding month were $343,000 and in June a year ago $249,000.

Sales Off

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Retail sales in Fort Smith, showing a gain of 5 per cent during June as compared with the same month a year ago, ran counter to the general trend in Arkansas, the Commerce Department reported on Thursday.

The department said retail sales of 256 independent stores in the state declined 12 per cent in dollar volume last month compared with June, 1937, and showed an 8 per cent decrease compared with May.

Little Rock sales were 16 per cent below those of June, 1937.

Cop Says Crack-Ups Go Up When Stocks Go Up

TYLER, Texas—(AP)—The rise and fall of the stock market is reflected in the way people drive, says Capt. Walter Elliott of the Texas highway patrol.

"Not only traffic violations but other law violations increase when the market is on the rise," he says. "When the market is falling, people quiet down again. I don't know why it is, but it is what I find."

Why Strife Is Endless in Palestine, Home of Prince of Peace

As a holy land to people of three great religions, and as a geographical crossroad between Europe and the Far East, Palestine has been a place of contention since earliest recorded times. The accompanying photographs, adapted from "The Puzzle of Palestine," a Headline Book of the Foreign Policy Association, tell today's story there. Since 1881, Jews from many lands have been slowly moving to Palestine to create a national homeland. After the World War, this movement was accelerated by a British mandate for the League of Nations commissioning the British to help create a Jewish national home in Palestine, yet to respect the rights of Arabs and Christians who lived there.

Ever since that time, there have been ever-increasing conflicts between the Arabs and the Jews. The latter, filtering into the country in ever-increasing numbers under protection of the British, have built towns and public works, reclaimed land, and made great material progress. With such conditions not only the Jewish but the Arab, even the Christian population, increased rapidly. Today there are twice as many people in Palestine as in 1922. But as more and more land, and more and more jobs pass into Jewish control, the Arabs become more and more restless, a feeling which broke into bad rioting at Jaffa and a general Arab strike two years ago.

With the British, responsible for public order, holding a very hot potato, an effort was made to compromise. A Royal Commission recommended a partition of Palestine into a sovereign Arab state, a sovereign Jewish state, and a British. This pleased nobody. Another commission is now studying revisions in the plan. On June 29, the British, who had often hanged Arabs for terrorist attacks, also hanged a Jew similarly convicted.

Disorder flamed higher. More than 100 persons have been killed, and the British have had to move in about 12,000 soldiers to keep bombings, assaults, murders, and sniping from sweeping the whole country into chaotic civil war.

Last speaker of the day was Winfred Lake, of DeQueen, who appeared in favor of Congressman John L. McClellan, of Malvern, candidate for United States senator. Mr. Lake said in part: "This is not a race between a man and a woman, but one to see which can best serve the needs of the people on the senate floor. . . . Men are judged by what they have accomplished. . . . Shall it be silent or fighting?"

Mr. Lake cited McClellan as having obtained the $5,000,000 recently allocated by the federal government to the state for road construction. He quoted one of the members of the house roads committee, a resident of another state, as saying, "John McClellan is the man to get roads for the State of Arkansas."

Revolt in Greece Quickly Put Down

Dictator Meax Hears of Victory on the Island of Crete

ATHENS, Greece—(AP)—A revolt against the regime of General John Metaxas, dictator of Greece, apparently was quickly crushed Friday.

The governor of the island of Crete, where the uprising broke out, cabled Metaxas that order had been restored in Cana, Crete capital.

Four hundred armed men, reported to be sailors, effected a coup by taking advantage of a weakened garrison at Cana.

During 1937 approximately 20 billion gallons of gasoline were used by motorists.

Results of Thursday's play:
Men's singles: Jack Pritchett defeated Elmer Frisby 3-0, 0-3, 3-0. Dwight Ridgill defeated Jackson Vineyard 3-0, 3-1.
Max Walker defeated Percy Ramsey 3-0, 3-1.

Senior boy's singles first round Dorsey Fuller defeated Edward Lester 3-1, 1-3, 3-1. Richard Stanford defeated Roy Ramsey 3-1, 2-3, 3-1. Weldon Taylor defeated Elgin Ward 3-2, 3-2. Mark Buchanan defeated C. V. Nunn Jr., 3-1, 1-3, 3-0.

Adult mixed doubles finals: Dwight Ridgill and Mrs. E. W. Graham defeated Bill Routon and Lenora Routon 6-1, 6-1.

The most interesting and hard-fought matches were between Dorsey Fuller and Edward Lester, Richard Stanford and Roy Ramsey. Another good match was between Weldon Taylor and Elgin Ward of Emmet. Both lads played smashing tennis with never a let-up.

The classic of the day, however, was between E. P. Young Jr., and Richard Fenwick. Fenwick forced Young to carry him the full three sets, fighting hard all through the match. At least a dozen times during the second and third sets Young had Fenwick at games, set and match point, but Fenwick rallied to take the second set and win the first game in the final one.

Both players displayed and amazing variety of shots for players so young. Fenwick tried to use his height on net play but Young repeatedly passed him down the sidelines or forced him back with beautiful lobs. Fenwick made

The Story of OD and AD

OD and AD owned neighboring farms. Both decided to grow tomatoes. But when their tomatoes were ripe, OD and AD had different ideas as to how they should sell them. This is the story of what happened.

and the TOMATOES

How OD and AD Sold Their Tomatoes

OD filled baskets with his tomatoes and put them in a wagon and drove to town. He went up and down the streets looking for people who wanted to buy tomatoes. Some days he sold all. Some days he sold only a few. When the season was over, he found he had made just enough to live on.

AD thought there must be a better way to sell his tomatoes. He knew he must tell people about them, but he decided he could never sell very many tomatoes if he talked to people one at a time. So he used one of the simplest forms of ADVERTISING. He built a stand by the side of the road where many people passed. He put up a sign that said: "AD's big, red, ripe, juicy tomatoes." Because so many people saw the sign, enough people stopped to buy so that he sold all his ripe tomatoes every day. Many who bought, remembering his name on the sign, came back again and again. When the season was over, he had money in the bank.

One day AD heard that tomato juice was healthful and good to drink. He thought it would also be convenient to handle, to sell, and to serve in the home. He told OD about it. The next year both decided to make and sell tomato juice.

How OD and AD Sold Their Tomato Juice

OD's wife squeezed tomatoes all day and put the juice in bottles. OD took it to town and went from door to door, looking for people who wanted to buy tomato juice. In a whole day he could call at only about 50 homes. As most people had never heard of tomato juice and did not know how good it was, he sold only a few bottles each day.

AD felt sure there was a better way to make and sell his tomato juice. He took some money from the bank and bought a shiny new press that squeezed out juice easily and quickly. He put the juice in bottles that could be tightly sealed. He had labels printed for the bottles, reading: AD's PURE TOMATO JUICE.

He went to the grocery stores in town, where many people came every day, and asked the grocers to put a few of his bottles on their counters. Then he put an advertisement in newspapers read by thousands of people. The advertisement said:

"Enjoy the refreshing taste of AD's PURE TOMATO JUICE, pressed from big, red, vine-ripened tomatoes. Good to drink and good for you. At your favorite grocery store."

Because so many people read about it, enough people asked for it to exhaust the supply quickly. And remembering AD's name on the label they came back and asked for it again. So AD bought tomatoes from his neighbors and made more tomato juice to supply the demand.

What OD and AD Did The Next Year

OD and his wife decided that if they were going to make any money, they would have to work harder. So she got up earlier in the morning and picked tomatoes and squeezed and bottled juice all day. OD spent a longer day in town trying to see more people in order to sell more bottles. But, even though OD and his wife worked long and hard, they could not make any money.

AD now saw how true it was that the more people he told about his tomato juice, the more he sold. So he advertised in other cities, telling women how good tomato juice was for their families to drink. He also sent salesmen to call on grocers. He got so many orders that he arranged to buy tomatoes from hundreds of other farmers, built a bigger building, bought more equipment, more bottles and labels, and employed more people. AD knew that, because his name was on every bottle, he must always maintain the high quality of his product. And, because he did this, women soon insisted on AD's PURE TOMATO JUICE.

AD already had found that the more he advertised and the more bottles he sold, the less it cost him to put up each bottle. Therefore, as his advertising was extended all over the country and his sales increased, he reduced the price. Thus more and more people could afford to enjoy tomato juice, and, although his profit per bottle was now very small indeed, he sold so many bottles that he had a very fine business. So both AD and his customers were benefited.

AD tells OD how an Idea Became an Industry—through ADVERTISING

ONE DAY, years later, OD called on his old neighbor AD. He said, "It's remarkable how your business has grown since you got that idea about selling tomato juice."

"Yes," said AD, "but even more important have been the benefits to other people. We are now only one out of many producers of tomato juice. Yet we take all the tomatoes grown by more than a thousand farmers who have here an assured market for their crops. We give steady employment the year round to several hundred people and employ hundreds more on part-time. We pay more than half a million dollars a year to manufacturers of cans, bottles, labels, supplies, and equipment.

"The entire industry now sells more than twenty million dollars worth of tomato juice a year and the public enjoys its healthful benefits—at the lowest price at which it ever has been sold. Yes, tomato juice was a great idea, but that idea would have benefited very few—without ADVERTISING to tell the story."

Hope Star

With the Hempstead Home Agent Melva Bullington

Ants. spelled a-n-t-s. are unwelcome summer visitors that worry many a Hempstead county housewife. The easiest way to get rid of them is to locate the nest, to keep food supplies in tight containers or in the refrigerator, and to sweep up promptly any crumbs of cake or bread scattered in the house.

Ants like sweet foods especially, such as sugar, cakes, and candies, and cooking meats or meat products. If a foraging or scout ant locates food of these kinds, it reports its discovery to the ant colony. In an incredibly short time the storage places may be a warning with unwelcome visitors.

If the nest can be located by following the trail of the workers back to the point of their disappearance, the inmates of the nest or colony may be reached and destroyed. If the nest is not in place where a fire hazard would be created, Mrs. Ida A. Fenton, extension economist, household management, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture, recommends destroying by injecting a little carbon bisulphide, kerosene, or gasoline into the opening by means of an oil can or small syringe. These substances are all inflammable, and precautions should be taken to see that no fire is lighted where they are used, she warns.

Tried and proved prevention methods are to keep food supplies likely to attract ants in tight containers or in the refrigerators, sweep up promptly any crumbs of cake or bread scattered in the house.

Poison baits can also be used to kill the queens and the brood. Mrs. Fenton recommends sugar syrup containing sodium arsenate, benzoate of soda, and tartaric acid as an effective bait. If used out of doors it should be placed in small containers and put near the place where ants occur in large numbers. If used indoors, small amounts can be placed in the trail of the ants on sponges. Precautions should be taken to safeguard human beings and animals when poisoned syrups are being used, prepared, or kept on hand.

Pictures Dramatize the Horror of Youth's 17-Story Leap

Deaf to Pleas of Sister and Police ... He Leaps ... His Body Smashes Through Hotel Marquee

On a narrow ledge of New York's Gotham hotel, 17 stories above Fifth avenue, 26-year-old John Ward is pictured as he listened to frantic pleas of his sister, Mrs. Katherine Bull, shown leaning from window at left, that he come back into their hotel room and not leap. At another window, almost able to reach the would-be suicide, a policeman is shown adding his argument, while on the ledge above two more men work with ropes in a futile try to prevent the leap.

Plunging through a glass and steel hotel marquee, John Ward's body is pictured in this remarkable photograph just an instant before it struck the sidewalk after his 17-story suicide plunge. The photo, taken by Charles Faceker, NEA Service-Acme Newspictures cameraman, shows horrified spectators leaping out of the way of the falling body.

Looking Down ... At Death Ravine

Final Act in Manhattan's Macabre Tragedy

This was the end of the horrible, 11-hour suicide drama enacted by John Ward. His body, terribly crushed, is shown on the sidewalk in front of the Gotham Hotel in New York, just a fraction of a second after it struck. Policemen—hardened by many encounters with death—are shown as they stood by in horror, unable to move for a few seconds after the body landed. Ten thousand's of spectators, held back by police lines on New York's famous Fifth Avenue, witnessed the fatal plunge after watching for hours while police and Ward's relatives vainly sought to dissuade him from leaping.

What's Wrong Here? Does Cute Cyclist Flout Gravity?

Here's a picture that has everybody guessing—and arguing. Is this fair cyclist coasting uphill in defiance of all the laws of gravity? Certainly appears so, doesn't it? Or are you wrong? Yes, you're wrong. The picture was taken on Maine's famous upside-down hill at Wilton, where things are not what they seem. Actually Esther Washauk is gliding downhill in the regular and prescribed manner, and Sir Isaac Newton and his apple were not in error after all. It's all an optical illusion. The hill is famous all over New England and many motorists go there to "coast uphill."

Good Afternoon

Hope Star Carrier Boys endeavor to finish their weeks' collection each Saturday afternoon—and are required to pay for their papers not later than the following Monday.

Your LITTLE MERCHANT is in business for himself. This is his first venture into the business world. His success or failure in this venture will in a large way determine his success or failure in later years.

Your newspaper is SOLD to the carrier boy. He is compelled to pay for all papers which he receives and depends entirely upon collections for his running capital and profit.

Won't you help us to keep good, reliable carriers on our routes by paying regularly each Saturday morning when the boy knocks on your door?

Thank You
HOPE STAR.
